

25 February 2005

Dear Dr Fingleton,

I write to congratulate and support you on your article in today's Irish Times.

Simply, as a barrister of 15 years – specialising in disability and particularly special education needs and child welfare – I would wish for greater direct liaison with parents whose children are neglected by the State.

I would like to discuss same with you and perhaps you might call me whenever convenient.

Keep up the good work.

God bless

John Hanlon
Barrister at Law